Iceland stands in the middle of the Atlantic, a small nation positioned between two different cultures, political systems and world powers. When the country hosted the famous meeting of the Presidents of the USA and former USSR, the island that was known as ‘Europe’s Best Kept Secret’ was thrust into the limelight.

From that point, Iceland began to play more major roles, to become the ‘go to place for tourists and adventurers—to become known for its volcanic eruptions and its economic crash.

On every front, Iceland was suddenly thrust into the public eye and, as word spread about the people, the nature, the amazing sights and experiences that greeted visitors, it has undergone an amazing transformation.

It has gained the confidence to take its place on the world stage, bringing to the table fresh ideas, perspectives and an entrepreneurial vision to take risks and try things no one else has dared.

Given the challenges the world faces, it is at this time that Iceland is stepping up to the plate to provide forums for discussion, a land of health alternatives, possibilities of tranquil peace and a humbling perspective of life with its dramatic landscapes that just might enable cooler heads to prevail.

This issue offers a range of topics and views from the North.

Icelandic language

Iceland is one of the European root languages, like Latin. There is no ’c’ or ’z’ in modern Icelandic, except in foreign words. However, it still contains some letters not found in most other languages. This basic list provides a general idea of their sounds, using familiar words rather than phonetics.

"I am happy to be in Iceland and like the Icelandic people. Certainly, there are temporarily problems in relations between Iceland and Russia. I hope, however, that reason will prevail and that we shall succeed in finding solutions to these issues," says Anton Vasiliev, Russia’s Ambassador to Iceland, when we met him in the ambassador residence in Túngata in Reykjavík. Vasiliev has served as ambassador to the country since April 2014. He knew a lot about Iceland before becoming ambassador. In 2008 Vasiliev had been appointed Ambassador of Russia for Arctic Affairs. "Thus, I also represented Russia in the Arctic Council and the Barents Euro-Arctic Council. I frequently came to Iceland on official business, got to know and like the country and nation."

"Worked in turbulent times" Anton Vasiliev has a relaxed and friendly demeanour. After a short chat with this just over sixty year-old representative of Russia in Iceland there’s no doubt that here is a highly qualified and experienced man. The Russian authorities have clearly made a careful choice when appointing Vasiliev as Ambassador to Iceland. His resumé is impressive. "I was born in Moscow", said Vasiliev, adding that he studied at Moscow State Institute of International Relations, specialising in International Economics, graduating in 1976, aged 22. "I also learned Chinese, French and English. Then I went to China, where I worked in the Soviet trade mission in Beijing. This was at the end of the period of the so-called Cultural Revolution in China. I returned home to Russia and completed my Ph.D. in Economics in 1983, focusing on the Chinese economy. I then returned to China and began a seven-year period as an diplomat of the Soviet Embassy."

The Russian Ambassador has lived in tumultuous times. He was born only a year after the death of Joseph Stalin in 1953 and lived to adulthood in the Soviet Communist society that most people believed was there to stay. All that would eventually change. "When I came back to Russia after seven years in China, the Soviet Union no longer existed. I returned again to China as the Deputy Head of Mission of the Russian Embassy. My job in China at first was mainly to monitor the Chinese economy. I travelled all over this magnificent country and learned a lot. China is one of the most interesting civilizations. I am grateful to have had the opportunity to get to know this country. There I witnessed a dramatic change in Chinese society in the wake of the economic reforms that were established in 1979 and marked the end of the Cultural Revolution."

"Disarmament and the Arctic region" Vasiliev said he lived 13 years in China altogether and enjoyed that time very much. "The stay there was an instructive and unique experience." He moved back to Russia in 1996, where he was assigned a new and radically different task from that which he had in China and carried with it a great responsibility. "In following decade I worked for the Russian Ministry of Foreign Affairs and in the UN on arms control and disarmament. I was head of the Russian delegation in Geneva, Switzerland, in the implementation commission of the START Treaty. The former Soviet Union agreed with the United States to reduce strategic nuclear weapons capabilities at the end of the Cold War in 1991. This was a very challenging but also rewarding work." In 2002 – 2007 he embarked on the multilateral arms control diplomacy, representing Russia at the Conference on Disarmament in Geneva.

Once again Vasiliev radically changed course in his work when he undertook new project. It happened in 2008, when... he was appointed Ambassador of Russia on Arctic Affairs. “My experience of dealing, with major international partners and multilateral negotiations, both from the years in China and in arms control, proved extremely helpful to me in this area. I really enjoy working on Arctic issues. The natural environment and the people living in this region fascinate me. The conditions are exceptional. It’s a vast area and in many ways the environment is harsh. This calls for cooperation and assistance between nations. People have got to work together. Collaboration among nations within the Arctic Council has already yielded results. Nations have agreed to joint legal obligations relating to the Arctic such as for search and rescue cooperation and in the field of marine pollution. The arctic environment is extremely important.”

A Commendation of Icelanders
In connection with his work as Ambassador of Russia on Arctic Affairs, Vasiliev regularly visited Iceland. “I was in the country during the economic collapse in the autumn of 2008 and witnessed the protests here in the city centre as a result.”

As a Doctor of Economics, it was an unforgettable experience for him to see the nation’s financial system collapse. He looked not only at this through the eyes of a diplomat, but also through the eyes of a professional. It fuelled his interest in Icelandic society. Today he praises the Icelandic nation for how it addressed the huge difficulties involved in the crash. “Through my work as ambassador, I have watched closely and can testify today the vivid success Iceland has achieved economically. This has been accomplished in spite of numerous obstacles.”

Vasiliev said he was delighted to be appointed Ambassador to Iceland. He took up his post in April 2014 and has lived in this country ever since. This enabled him to get to know Iceland better and, at the same time, make it possible to continue to monitor and work on issues related to the Arctic. “Between the environmental challenges we face due to global warming and the opportunities it offers for use of the Arctic’s resources and space, lies a contradiction. There are obvious commercial benefits, such as opening of maritime transport routes that were closed because of sea ice. Also, we can mention here an easier access to resources such as oil, gas and metals. Arctic nations must responsively explore and extract resources while, at the same time, taking into account the need to protect the highly sensitive ecosystem of the area. The damage can easily become almost irreparable if we are not careful in all our policies and conservation.” This suggests to Anton Vasiliev the obvious example of Iceland. “Icelanders are familiar with the nature of the damage caused by wind erosion on areas of vegetation, as well as by human intrusion”.

Important factors in Arctic Affairs
This leading Russian expert on the Arctic region also highlights the human factor. He said that the rights of the indigenous peoples of the High North need to be guaranteed and their way of life protected. “This is a tricky tightrope walk that takes into account many factors. Into this are woven many challenges and problems due to changes in environment and technology. There is no doubt that global warming is taking place with the changes in the climate system. We’ve become aware of this now. Never since records began, for example, has as much rain fallen in one day in Moscow as was the case this November. The equivalent of an entire month’s average rainfall fell in one day. Here in Iceland, this winter has so far been very mild. At the same time, we’ve heard news of snowfalls in the Saudi Arabian desert.”

Vasiliev said that the Arctic Council has undertaken an important pioneering study of global warming and other environmental changes in the Arctic – Arctic Climate Impact Assessment (ACIA). He says that it is evident that it’s due to manmade causes. “Russia recognizes this and, among other things, became a member of the Paris Accord on Climate Control signed in 2016.

Therefore, we are committed to reduce greenhouse gas emissions in accordance with certain criteria.\[...

Russians are working diligently

Vasiliev said that nothing in Russian activities in the Arctic region should be surprising. Since 2008, Russia has followed the strategy formulated by the Security Council and signed by the President relating to Arctic affairs. It includes, among other things, the development of the infrastructure associated with the maritime route north of Russia between the Atlantic and Pacific - the Northern Sea Route. We see it has a great future because it shortens the sailing distance between Western Europe and East Asia by 40 percent. This means great savings. Countries such as China, South Korea, Japan and Singapore are showing keen interest in it. We are not sitting idle. We have adopted a comprehensive plan that aims at managing traffic on this route and ensuring its safety. Search and rescue centres are under construction at regular intervals along the coast, from the port of Murmansk in the west to Anadyr in the east. Russia is also putting up satellites to monitor the safety of the shipping route north of Russia, provide better weather information and more secure communications. It is also mapping the seabed in these areas, training captains and others who will sail there and work, and so on." The Russians are also constructing three new, most advanced nuclear powered icebreakers in the world. “These ships will be so powerful that they can break through all types of ice regardless of its thickness. We are also constructing new diesel-powered icebreakers. They are very sophisticated and are specifically designed to be capable of operation in shallow coastal waters. We are building a new large port Sabetta in Yamal region for exporting liquefied natural gas by ship. We see great potential in using this route for export of oil and gas to the market from the northern regions of Russia. There are enormous resources in the ground in Siberia, of both gas, oil and metals such as gold, copper and nickel.”

Expected economic growth in Russia

At the end of our talk with Anton Vasiliev, we touch on relations between Iceland and Russia. The Soviet Union was one of the first to recognize Iceland as an independent nation. It happened in 1943 when the first envoy from there received permanent residence in this country. The bilateral relationship has always been good in both cultural and business areas. In recent months, however, a shadow has become evident over trade due to the sanctions. Russia has joined sanctions some western nations imposed on Russia. We responded with countermeasures. The solution to this issue is in your hands. Of course, we should remove all these absurd barriers to trade. But the Russians can live without these foodstuff products that we no longer import from western countries.”

Vasiliev adds that, in some ways, Russia has even benefitted from sanctions. “This has stimulated innovation in the technology sector and in creative industries in Russia. Our agriculture and domestic food production is flourishing. Russia, however, has certainly endured a recession in its economy. There are various explanations for this besides sanctions, such as a fall in oil prices on the world market. Currently this year there will be a GDP decline between 0.6 and 0.7 percent, but the horizon has already been reached. This year we expect more than a one percent growth. This is happening despite sanctions.”

Too bad for Iceland

Doctor of economics, Anton Vasiliev, says experience has shown that sanctions harm many of the countries initiating them, taking part in them more than Russia itself. “Iceland is probably leading the pack. Marine products made up the bulk of imports of goods from Iceland to Russia and, generally, trade between the two states. Icelandic fish was highly regarded by Russian consumers. You had there a good market with bright future. The public in Russia witnesses that Icelandic fish has disappeared from the stores. I can feel it myself. When I’m home in Moscow I can no longer get the Icelandic fish I really like.”

The Ambassador of Russia to Iceland believes that his nation has rarely enjoyed fairness in disputes with states in the West. “Let’s look at the reasons given for the sanctions. Russia can refute all of them. First, the Crimea was not incorporated by force into Russia. It was the free will of the Crimean inhabitants, confirmed in a free referendum to join Russia. The entire process was fully consistent with international law. The Kosovo case was much less legitimate. Second, Russia did not shoot down the Malaysian passenger jet, MH17; over eastern Ukraine in summer 2014. We have presented abundant proof to this, but it is disregarded. Thirdly, the Russian troops or arms have never been brought to eastern Ukraine. There is not one single piece of evidence to show that the accusations against Russia have a basis in fact. If there were any dependable evidence it would have emerged instantly because the surveillance systems are so advanced today, such as satellites, drones, Open Skies Treaty inspections etc., etc. All these reasons are allegations and deception. Russia is not a threat to anyone (if you prefer to stay in a real world, of course, not in a world of make-believe built by information war). This boycott is ludicrous and counterproductive and clearly serves other goals than were announced. But Russia is always open for fair and equal cooperation with anyone who really want it. I believe in further development of friendly relations and cooperation between Russia and Iceland in many areas, and will do my best in this regard,” says Anton Vasiliev in closing.

Icelandic. For those interested in shots, Tópas and Opal Vodka shots are not to be missed. And don't forget about the beer—Duty Free carries brands such as Viking, Boli and the award-winning Egils Gull. Duty Free Iceland also carries a large selection of other beers, which have also earned many international awards. A wide range of flavours is on offer, from numerous smaller breweries, as well as larger companies.

Sweet Iceland

Confectionery is a big thing in Iceland, and when it comes to chocolate, the Icelandic brand Noi Sirius is one to look for. The company, established in 1920, is the largest confectionery manufacturer in Iceland. It produces a tasty line of chocolates encompassing semi-sweet, bitter and milk chocolate in a variety of shapes and sizes, including the company’s well-known chocolate gift boxes.

Omnom is another local chocolate maker that is quite special. The company sources premium organic beans from a range of cocoa fields around the world and tailors its chocolate-making process to ensure that each variety of chocolate achieves its full potential. The only additions to the mix are raw cane sugar and, in the milk chocolate range, creamy Icelandic milk. Its design conscious packaging makes this the ideal gift to bring home.

Another name to check out is Hafliði Ragnarsson, one of the world’s top 100 chocolatiers and something of a purist in terms of the mighty cocoa bean. He works his magic to combine classic blends with more exotic flavours of pistachio, passion fruit, star anise and even Earl Grey tea.

Freyja and Stefan B Chocolatier are among other popular brands that offer sweets and liquorice that would guarantee you a warm reception back home, if only you could resist temptation during your flight!

Quality Skincare Products

Icelandic herbal oils and cosmetics sit next to international brands, offering health-giving benefits from the country’s mountains, pristine valleys and hot springs. A recent scientific breakthrough in Iceland, based on 10 years of biotechnology research, has resulted in a new concept that is marketed here as BIOEFFECT® skin care (serum and day cream). It nourishes and replenishes skin cells, bringing a youthful glow to even the most stressed or sensitive skin, without harmful chemical compounds.

The scientists at Bioeffect won a Nobel Prize for their work, and their company offers a range of revolutionary biotech skin care products, including the recently introduced EFG Day Serum which rejuvenates the skin and minimizes the appearance of fine lines and wrinkles.

A number of other companies use local Icelandic ingredients as well. Sóley Organic, for example, uses hand-picked wild Icelandic herbs in their environmentally-friendly and preservative-free products.

Taramar uses Icelandic seaweed and organic herbs in its pure, safe skincare products.

Villimey specialises in biological salves and ointments made of Icelandic herbs in products such as anti-aging facial oils, lip balms and muscle and joint creams.

The Purity Herbs brand produces natural skin care products including joint relief oils and volcanic body scrubs.

No discrimination

The shops are both duty free and tax free for all passengers regardless of what passport you may hold or which country you are flying to or from. The shops are open day and night, which is a nice touch from the Vikings!

Whether you’re starting your holiday, stopping over, or concluding your trip, Duty Free Iceland will give you lasting warm memories of the Land of Fire and Ice.

Reykjavík City Museum

Multiple exhibits focus on historical and cultural aspects of the capital city

Reykjavík City Museum gives travellers the opportunity to experience the history of Reykjavík in a fun and engaging way. The museum, which comprises five separate sites, aims to preserve Reykjavík’s cultural heritage, dating back to the days of the Settlement in the late 9th century. Four of the museums are within convenient walking distance of the centre of downtown Reykjavík, while the Árbær Open Air Museum is only a 15-minute drive from the city centre and the ferry to Viðey Island leaves regularly from the Old Harbour in downtown Reykjavík.

The Settlement Exhibition & Settlement Sagas

The Settlement Exhibition is authentic as it gets as it was built around the actual ruins of a Viking Age longhouse that has been preserved. The exhibition gives guests a look into the life of the first people who called the Reykjavík area their home and the ways in which they adapted to their new life. Meanwhile, the second part of the museum is focused on the Settlement Sagas, and history and literary buffs will not want to miss this. The Settlement Sagas comprises some of the nation’s most renowned documents, many of them written in the 12th century but relating events that go back to late 9th century. This is one of only three places in Iceland where you can see ancient Icelandic manuscripts. The exhibition is suitable for all ages and includes an activity centre for children.

Reykjavík Maritime Museum

Fishing has been the backbone of Iceland since the days of the Settlement. Fish nourish Iceland’s inhabitants and are an important export industry. The Reykjavík Maritime Museum, which is located by the old harbour, focuses on exhibitions that show the importance of fish to the nation. Today, Icelanders fish on modern trawlers, but in the old days, fishermen regularly put their lives at risk on primitive boats in order to feed their families. The museum shows the equipment fishermen have used through the ages. However, one of the main attractions at the museum is Ásókn, the Coast Guard ship which took part in all three cod wars with Britain. Guided tours are offered daily at 13:00, 14:00, and 15:00.

Árbær Open Air Museum

The Árbær Open Air Museum is a treasure. The museum, which was founded in 1957, gives visitors a visual sense of Reykjavík’s past. The site comprises a village-like collection of more than 20 houses, each of which is a separate exhibition. Visitors learn how Reykjavík developed from a few isolated farms into the capital city of Iceland that today is home to more than 133,000 people. During the summer months, staff members are clad in period costumes that are quite charming and fun. The museum is suitable for all ages and includes a playground and a toy exhibition where children can play freely.

Viðey Island

Viðey is a little gem of an island just off the coast of Reykjavík and is accessible by ferry. The island, which is about 1.7 square kilometres (0.7 square miles) in size, boasts unspoiled nature with large stretches of grassy plains and a rich birdlife, a few isolated farms into the life of the first people who called the Reykjavík area their home and the ways in which they adapted to their new life. Meanwhile, the second part of the museum is focused on the Settlement Sagas, and history and literary buffs will not want to miss this. Reykjavík Museum of Photography

Reykjavík Museum of Photography has an impressive collection, now comprising about six million photographs. The oldest photos date from around 1640, giving a glimpse of city life decades ago. The museum preserves photographs from professional, as well as amateur photographers, from industrial and commercial photographers, to portrait and press photographers. Reykjavík is a vibrant city with a rich history and contemporary culture. Check out the free exhibitions.

Family Friendly Fun

Reykjavík City Museum is family friendly and all museum sites have something that caters to children. For example, the “Come and play” exhibition at Árbær Open Air Museum has a playground, furnished rooms with everything in child sizes as well as lots of toys to play with. The Settlement Exhibition has a special family corner where kids and parents can have a fun time together. The Reykjavík Maritime Museum offers a fun treasure hunt for kids during their visit to the museum.

Ásókn — The Coast Guard Ship

In the 1970s, the National Museum of Iceland collaborated with the Culture and Tourism Department to establish the Settlement Exhibition at Árbær, a 700-year-old replica of a longhouse village located near the old harbour. Among the exhibition’s main features was Ásókn, the Coast Guard ship which took part in all three cod wars with Britain. Guided tours are offered daily at 13:00, 14:00, and 15:00. SagaMedica provides quality natural products from Icelandic medicinal herbs, with a special emphasis on angelica, which grows wild in Iceland. Some research claims that Icelandic herbs are more potent than others due to the short growing season in the summer months under the midnight sun. Today, scientific evidence backs up this claim. Research has proven that the Angelica archangelica plant is, in fact, an effective way to treat health problems such as cold symptoms, an overactive bladder, and frequent urination.

Impressive history
Angelica has a long history in Iceland. The plant was considered an asset to the Vikings who first settled in Iceland, as they knew its value full well. The root, stem, seeds and leaves were all used, both as food and medicine. This is documented in an Icelandic medical book over 150 years old. SagaMedica has been selling natural dietary supplements made from Angelica since the company was founded by academics from the University of Iceland in the year 2000. Dr. Sigmundur Guðbjarnason, a former dean of the university, was a pioneer in research into Icelandic medicinal herbs and their health benefits. He laid the foundation for SagaMedica, which has grown steadily through the years, and now offers a range of products that improve the lives of consumers. SagaMedica combines 1100 years of history and scientific research with the pristine Icelandic nature to create innovative health products.

Harvested on Hrísey
Angelica grows wild on the island Hrísey, which is situated in the northern Eyjafjörður fjord. The soil is fertile and pure and the air is clean. In fact, Hrísey was awarded an organic certification due to its clean, positive environment. The herb is picked by hand on the island and every measure is taken to ensure its purity and the protection of the Icelandic nature. The process takes the natural environment into account from harvesting the herbs to the manufacturing of the final products.

The voice of Iceland
Voxis is a popular SagaMedica product that is produced from the leaves of Angelica. The throat lozenges, which are available in shops in Iceland and in the Duty Free area in Keflavík International Airport, contain antiviral phytochemicals which can help to prevent cold or flu infections. Voxis has been shown to relieve irritating coughs and has a soothing effect on sore throats. The lozenges contain menthol and eucalyptus and have a pleasant, refreshing taste.

SagaMedica’s products are available for purchase in Iceland’s grocery stores, pharmacies and on the company’s website www.sagamedica.com.

The Icelandic Phallological Museum

The Icelandic Phallological Museum in Reykjavík is, without a doubt, one of a kind. It holds a collection of phallic specimens that belong to various types of mammals. Here in the museum you can see examples of more than 220 penises and penile parts that belong to all the land and sea mammals found in Iceland. It even has on display the penis of an old Icelandic gentleman who died in 2011 at the ripe old age of 95. Furthermore, the museum has between 40–50 specimens from foreign mammals including a giraffe and an elephant.

“The purpose of the museum is showing these specimens,” says the curator, Hjörtur Sigurðsson, “but it’s also a scientific museum. Many professionals, such as biologists and doctors visit the museum to study. The purpose is also to educate and amuse people and, of course, to lift the taboo that has shrouded this subject for so long. It’s just a part of the anatomy; people should be able to discuss these things.”

Hjörtur says that what gets the most attention are the big things, like the penis of a sperm whale that is 1.7 metres long and weighs somewhere between 70–80 kilos. Strangely, the human penis gets a lot of attention too!

For the foreigners, the folklore section is popular. “They find it very funny that we can display penises from elves, trolls and the Hidden People.” Regarding the Hidden People: some claim they can see the hidden man’s penis; especially the women.

Nepalese Kitchen is a cozy restaurant on Reykjavík’s Laugavegur that is truly a feast for the senses. Upon walking inside, guests are greeted by the aroma of delicious spices as well as a welcome from its friendly owner, Deepak Pandey. Deepak, who was born in Nepal, has been living in Iceland for about 10 years, and takes great care in creating a warm atmosphere, first class service, a diverse menu and absolutely delicious food. “I have been a chef for 34 years and I enjoy serving quality food and authentic spices for Icelanders and tourists,” says Deepak. This passion for food started when he was a child and led him to work as a chef in many countries including England, India, Nepal, France and the United States, before settling in Iceland.

Inventive Dishes
The dishes, prepared by Deepak and his wife, are perfectly spiced, while the chefs are eager to cater for any dietary restrictions. “We have guests that have a gluten allergy, or a number of other food sensitivities and we are happy to prepare food just how they like it,” says Deepak. “All our dishes are made from scratch for each individual guest.” The menu is so diverse, it could be difficult to choose just one dish! Diners will find chicken, lamb, seafood, and vegetarian choices with sauces ranging from delicate to hearty.

Special Spices
The key to Nepalese food is the spice used. Deepak is very concerned about the spices; not just how they taste but also how they impact the body and soul. “We have spices that can be helpful to diabetics, people that are stressed, and those with some food sensitivities,” says Deepak. Every summer, he travels to India to hand-select the herbs and spices used in the restaurant. “I want to see the plants for myself, to see that they are the best quality,” he says.

Beautiful Space
The restaurant is tastefully decorated with a nod to Nepali culture in the art, linens and even music. It’s clear that the restaurant is a labour of love and Deepak’s passion for quality food shines through. “It is so important to cook good food for people; it gives them so much. People feel loved when they get good food,” says Deepak. One of his favorite dishes on the menu is a Nepali curry. “The spice mixture is unique and it comes directly from my mother.” Plan to stop by Nepalese Kitchen during your next stop to Reykjavík for tasty food, a wide selection of beer and wine, and warm service.

Exploring the surface of a glacier is thrilling, but actually getting inside one is a once in a lifetime experience. The staff behind Into the Glacier offer travellers that rare opportunity. Situated in the western part of Langjökull, the second largest ice cap in Iceland, and 1,260 metres above sea level, the ice cave stretches 40 metres deep underground, giving visitors the chance to see ice that’s been forming over centuries. The ice cave stretches more than 550 metres into the glacier.

Trip to the Top
The classic guided tour begins in Húsafell, which is 130km from Reykjavik, when guests board one of the most unique vehicles ever made, a customised super truck. This truck, which seats up to 35 passengers, was acquired from NATO, who originally used it as a cruise missile launcher. The 20km trip up to the glacier is an experience in itself in good weather or bad. Clear days offer exquisite views of the vast icy desert, while poor weather conditions reveal the power and unpredictability of Icelandic weather.

Enter the Glacier
Once inside, travellers, with crampons attached to their feet, get to experience something very few have seen. Lit by LED lights, guests begin to explore the tunnel, with a knowledgeable guide leading small groups, sharing many interesting facts about Iceland’s glaciers. Travellers are treated to views of gaping crevices as they look above. Additionally, there is a special area in the cave, which developers named ‘the chapel’, with LED-lit blocks of ice supporting wooden beams, which serves as a venue for weddings, marriage proposals and concerts.

Into the Glacier offers daily departures from Húsafell at 12:30pm and the tour lasts about four hours during the winter. Day tours from Reykjavik to the ice cave are available as well. For those that would like to treat themselves to a meal, you can buy a scrumptious lunch at Hotel Húsafell before you head out on your excursion. So be sure to put Into the Glacier on your list of ‘must do’s in Iceland!”
Catch the Northern Lights All Year Around
Aurora Reykjavík’s Northern Lights Center lets you see the Lights all year

There is perhaps nothing more magical and unforgettable than witnessing the beauty of a Northern Lights display in one’s lifetime. It’s the dream of many who come to Iceland, but alas, those unpredictable, frenetic lights tend to have a mind of their own and don’t always show up on cue—and certainly not in the summer months.

So it is with great joy that we welcome one of Iceland’s most recent additions—Aurora Reykjavík’s Northern Lights Center, where the Northern Lights are always on display.

A Unique Experience
The centre is the unique creation of four enterprising young Icelanders who recognised the need for just such a place—a kind of one-stop-shop for all things Northern Lights. Located on the far side of Reykjavík’s Old Harbour, the centre serves both educational and inspirational purposes.

Here you can read up on the auroras through stories and legends from around the world, learn something about the science behind this amazing phenomenon and gaze at spectacular Northern Lights photography from top Icelandic photographers. There is even a specially equipped ‘photo booth’ where you can learn how to adjust your camera’s settings should you want to try your hand at capturing an auroral display yourself.

Soothing Sights and Sounds
However, Aurora Reykjavík’s real pull and ace up its sleeve is its fantastic HD time-lapse film of recent auroral activity. Projected onto a 7 metre-wide screen, you can sit back and enjoy this 13 minute film that features a dazzling display of auroral activity, accompanied by relaxing music. Therapeutic and restful are two words that come to mind to describe this zen-like experience.

Hot coffee and choice gifts
Before leaving, be sure to grab a free cup of coffee in the Northern Lights Center gift shop and check out the impressive display of clothing, glassware, paintings and woollen knitwear by some of Iceland’s most creative designers. The theme? You guessed it—EMV.

Setting the record straight
While in Iceland, you might be told that the outside air temperature needs to be around 0°C or below in order to see the Northern Lights. The oft quoted but erroneous assumption is that the Northern Lights only appear at these temperatures. We would just like to set the record straight that while it is true that the Northern Lights do happen to be visible more often when the air is cold and the sky is clear, their appearance has nothing to do with actual temperature of the air.

ANCESTORS’ KNOWLEDGE

Healthy Food Direct from the Earth

In the old days, people still had knowledge about nature’s richness. They used what Mother Earth provided them: picked leaves and herbs, or searched the shores for the ocean’s supplies, such as seaweed. The shore is a garden; you just have to know where to harvest and what to collect.

A Pioneer

Biologist Eyjólfur Friðgeirsson knows nature pretty well. He is passionate about the harvesting of nature, which he sees as a food source and a treasure for delicacies. In 2005 he started his company Íslensk hollusta (Icelandic Wholesomeness), promoting the use of natural Icelandic products in their own taste and freshness, such as cheese and varieties of herbal tea. Nothing is added or changed in the production of the products.

Eyjólfur is a pioneer in his field in Iceland. He was the first to revive the idea of using seaweed as a dried snack and adding Icelandic moss, nipples and birch leaves into cheese making. He was also the first to create a bath salt from Iceland’s geothermal salt, using seaweed and Mount Hekla pumice. The country is rich in natural resources when it comes to nutrition.

His goal was to reawaken the folk knowledge about how to harness these gifts of the earth. The idea proved successful, and today his goods can be purchased in souvenir shops around Iceland. Northern Lights Salt gift packages, a seasoned salt made according to his special recipe, are available on board Icelandair’s aircraft in their Saga Shop.

Hand-Picked and Healthy

The hand-picked Icelandic moss is ready for use in tea or porridge. In the old days, seaweed was consumed in times of famine. Today we know that there is hardly a more nutrient-rich food. By adding seaweed to your daily diet, you can be sure that you are consuming ingredients from unspoiled Icelandic waters.

Homemade sauces, juices and jams made from traditional materials are a treat. Pamper your body with a rich bath salt, or treat yourself with Icelandic Herbal Tea and Arctic Thyme Tea from Íslensk hollusta. Try the Viking Salt, produced with an ancient salt production method.

The light and compact Seven Spices Gift Packet containing tea, salt and seaweed is an excellent contribution to your cuisine.

“Mother Earth knows what is best; we pick it for you, and you just have to take it home,” says Eyjólfur.

Reykjanes Peninsula is a UNESCO Global Geopark and part of the European and Global Geopark network. The peninsula, with its diversity of volcanic and geothermal activity, is well suited to be a Geopark as it is the only place in the world where the Mid-Atlantic Ridge is visible above sea level.
In most countries, the opportunity to experience life in a fishing town has all but disappeared. Not so in Iceland, where Grindavík is one of the busiest. Situated a few kilometres from the world-famous Blue Lagoon, 20 minutes from Keflavík’s International airport and 40 minutes from the capital, the town is packed with history going back as far as the first settlers.

A geological hotspot, the area offers such a wide array of other tours, sights and experiences that one holiday is not enough.

Guesthouse Borg is an ideal place to stay, meet interesting people and enjoy the facilities and fun the town offers. It caters for individuals, couples, families and groups of up to 16 people in a clean, modestly-priced homestay accommodation.

It’s in the evenings and on weekends that things really take off, though. It’s a small place, but packed with character. A piano in the corner is often pressed into use, making it a fun and inspiring evening. Whether you are a local or just visiting, you’ll feel at home.

Grindavík’s Harbour Café

Walk down to Grindavík’s harbour and you may see the nets. Then you’ll know you’re there. Bryggjan’s main work is repairing fishing nets and lines—nets that would completely cover the nearby mountain and lines that would stretch way beyond Reykjavík, over 50km away.

This is a fishing town and the café is a fishermen’s café—though, with the growing number of visitors from all over the world finding it, it is quickly becoming the café of choice in the area. Little wonder, as the help and friendliness of the owners is only matched by the delicious food they offer. My suggestion: don’t leave without having a bowl of their soup. It’s really good.

While I was there, one of the owners was spending time with visiting tourists, explaining the area and showing them on a map the best places to visit.

The museum showcases works of art, old and new, which depict volcanic eruptions, as well as artefacts, and volcanic rocks. The museum focuses on volcanoes around the world.

Volcanic hot spot
Iceland has a high concentration of active volcanoes due to its location on the divergent tectonic plate boundary of the Mid-Atlantic Ridge, and also because it sits over a geological hot spot. The island has 30 active volcanic systems, of which 15 have erupted since the settlement of Iceland in 874 AD. The most recent eruptions occurred in 2014 at Holuhraun near the Bárðarbunga system and the eruption under Eyjafjallajökull in 2010 that produced an enormous ash cloud.

Riveting museum
Diverse aspects of volcanoes are presented at the Volcano Museum, from the science, geology and their environmental effects to how they appear in art and literature. Talks are given daily in the museum in English and Icelandic about volcanoes and their effects, as well as information on geology for people with little or no previous knowledge of volcanoes. For visitors who would like an in-depth tour of the geology behind volcanoes, the museum offers geology excursions that visit a number of dramatic locations along the Snæfellsnes Peninsula.

Passionate curator
The world-renowned volcanologist Haraldur Sigurðsson created the Volcano Museum to share the wealth of knowledge he has accrued. Haraldur was born in Stykkishólmur in 1939, completed a BSc degree at Queens University in Belfast in 1965, and received his PhD from Durham University in England in 1978. He worked at the University of the West Indies from 1970, conducting research on Caribbean volcanoes. He served as professor of volcanology at the University of Rhode Island for 40 years. His research has been principally in volcanology, both on land and on the ocean floor. He has worked in Indonesia, Italy, West Indies, USA, West Africa, Greece, South and Central America and elsewhere, but Iceland remains firmly his home where the Volcano Museum is close to his heart.
WESTFJORDS

Iceland
North of Ísafjarðardjúp lies Aðalvík bay, open to the sea. The rimar mountain marks the southern end of the bay, while the northern end of Aðalvík. One of them was Snorri Björnsson, generally known as Snorri of Húsafell, in reference to the parish where he later served. He spent 16 years at Staður in the mid-18th century. He was believed to have supernatural skills, which came in useful in his relations with the Hornstrandir folk: Snorri generally got the better of them with his magical tricks.

According to folklore, he was subjected to attempts on the pastor’s life. One Saturday the pastor returned, the brothers had gone with the boat and left him behind alone.

The pastor’s wife was named Málfríður. She was an intelligent and experienced woman, who was said to have magical powers. She came down to the sea when the boat arrived and asked the brothers where Vigfús was. They told her he was writing his sermon for the next day, and smirked. She replied that it was quite possible that he might address them tomorrow. Then they went their separate ways; the brothers went home and thought no more of the pastor.

Early the following day the same brothers came to church. When they entered the church the pastor was standing before the altar. He preached a fierce sermon over them, which they well deserved. After Mass they reached for their pot and poured the contents over the head of one of the brothers, then threw the pot at the other and both fell down dead. Málfríður said afterwards that it was as well they acted at once, for the brothers had intended to kill the Rev. Vigfús in the pulpit with their sorcery. While the Rev. Vigfús was pastor of Aðalvík, he was constantly at loggerheads with magicians and in the end he had to leave, for his life was in danger. When he served in Austur-Skaftafellssýsla (at the other end of the country), his old parishioners were always sending ghosts to plague him, but his wife could always turn them back and ensure they did not harm him. The Rev. Vigfús said that all these spells would be the death of him if he lived longer than his wife. But it did not come to that, for she survived him and died peacefully in old age.

One of the many buildings that remain standing at Aðalvík is the church of Staður, a handsome edifice with a vestibule, tower and choir loft.

War in the Spiritual Realm

In past centuries many renowned clergymen served the parish of Staður in Aðalvík. One of them was Snorri Björnsson, also known as Snorri of Húsafell, in reference to the parish where he later served. He spent 16 years at Staður in the mid-18th century. Their favourite project is Kviar Lodge, a farm house abandoned since 1948.

Kviar was a farm in Kvíadalur Valley, a beautiful setting at the edge of the water with panoramic views over the expansive Jökulfirðir Bay. With history of habitation since the 14th century, you can clearly see signs of turf houses and stone walls around the farm. The last inhabitants left in 1948 and the house was left open to the elements.

In 2012, Borea came up with the idea of using the house for their adventures, turning it into a true adventure base for guests to enjoy. After a lot of hard labour, the house has been brought back to life, and offers adventure seekers and free spirits a perfect platform for all things outdoors.

The Adventures you can experience in Kviar…depending on season:
• Hiking in pristine wilderness
• Skiing from mountain tops to the sea
• Kayaking between abandoned fjords
• Exploring wildlife
• Arctic foxes, seals and birds within reach
• Relaxation and solitude
• Drangajökull Glacier is close by
• History of times gone by
• Fishing for arctic char and sea angling.

Vopnafjörður is surrounded by picturesque mountains, wondrous waterfalls and historical farms. It’s one of the best spots on the island to enjoy Iceland’s peace and tranquility and home to an array of wildlife. The history of the village dates back 1100 years, when the bay was first settled by Viking seafarers from Norway. Foreign merchants frequently sailed to Vopnafjörður in the early modern age, and a settlement gradually formed on a peninsula where the village stands today.

Stunning nature

The village has numerous opportunities for relaxation and outdoor activities. Many well-marked walking trails lead through the region’s natural pearls. One of them, ‘the elephant’, is a significant rock pillar on the east side of Vopnafjörður that bears a striking resemblance to an elephant. Fuglabjarganes is a prominent cliff that juts out on the northern coast of the town. You can get a good look at it from a marked hiking path from Strandhafnarvegur road, which runs along the Fugla River. The scenery is beautiful with white beaches, towering cliffs and impressive rock caverns and pillars. Vopnafjörður is only 60 to 90 minutes away from outstanding features of Iceland like Dettifoss, Mývatn and Langanes and only 2-3 hours from Herðubreið, ‘the queen of Icelandic mountains’, Askja and Holuhraun.

Outdoor activities

Vopnafjörður is a birdwatcher’s dream and the Tangi peninsula north of the village is a beautiful and remote spot to watch seabirds. Vopnafjörður also offers several hiking routes that vary from easy to challenging. Beginners will find a wide range of mapped routes and marked trails that offer scenic views of the whole of area—the bay, the Tangi Peninsula, inland areas and mountains. Hike to the end of the Tangi Peninsula to find interesting rock formations and beaches. Other activities could include a round of golf at the well-maintained 9-hole course or taking a dip in the heated swimming pool.

Culture and history

The old farm of Bustarfell is one of the best-preserved traditional Icelandic turf houses that many Icelanders called home for centuries. The museum offers a great opportunity to see how people’s way of life has changed through the centuries. The foundations of the current house are from 1770, but the house has undergone alterations over the years.

The East Iceland Emigration Center is dedicated to the emigration years 1870-1914, the years following the great Askja eruption of 1875 that displaced hundreds of people. The centre focuses on the history of the region and renewing contact with emigrants’ descendants. There are many documents and photos on display, making it a fascinating place to visit.
The wealth of South Iceland lies in the variety of geological, historical and nature sites along with the long list of activities that can be experienced in the region. This region has geological wonders such as Geyser; the waterfalls of Gullfoss, Háifoss, Skógafoss, Systrafoss and Seljalandsfoss; Pingvellir, where the tectonic plates crack the Earth; Europe’s largest glacier, Vatnajökull; the Kerid caldera; world-famous volcanoes like Hekla—“the Gateway to Hell”; Lakagígar, Laki, the notorious Eyjafjallajökull and the Katla Geopark; fantasy sites like Þórsmörk and Jökulsárlón. Here are historical sites like the world’s longest-running parliament at Pingvellir; museums, churches, the Stöng settlement, the Saga centre and villages like Eyrarbakki. Activities abound. Tours take you to all the sites, including the glaciers. Horse riding tours are popular. Try the river jet, boat trips or kayaking; scuba diving in clear waters, fishing or caving. Independent travellers can try hiking and cycling, camping or caravanning. Winter activities are just as thrilling. Fortunately, there is plenty of accommodation available throughout the region from camping to high-class hotels and restaurants to suit every taste. A developed infrastructure helps you get the most from your trips.
With Icelandic winter weather being rather unpredictable, it's good to know that you don’t have to brave the elements on your own. Reykjavík Excursions is one of Iceland's oldest tour companies, with experienced drivers and years of experience under its belt. With a large variety of tours to choose from, we take a look at two of their most popular day tours: South Shore Adventure and the Golden Circle.

First up, the South Coast

Reykjavík Excursions’ South Shore Adventure tour is the optimal solution for seeing all those iconic places that the south coast is so well known for—Seljalandsfoss, Skógafoss, Reynisfjara black sand beach, Vík and Mýrdalsjökull. This 10½-hour day tour departs from the BSÍ bus terminal in Reykjavík, taking you over the beautiful Hellishöfði headland that overlooks the south coast from its eastern flank. Passing several small villages, the tour makes its first stop in Hósvöllur, just a stone’s throw from the famous Eyjafjallajökull volcano that erupted spectacularly in 2010. A must for nature lovers, photographers and history buffs

On this tour, you’ll get a chance to walk up to (but not on) a real live glacier, Sólheimajökull, that flows out of the Mýrdalsjökull ice cap. Then it’s on to Reynisfjara, the black sand beach known for its massive columnar basalt cliffs and sea stacks. After lunch (not included), you’ll have a guided tour of Skógafoss where you'll learn about the life and times of Icelanders over the centuries and gain an appreciation for the Icelandic way of life. Afterwards you will visit the landmark waterfall Skógafoss that thunders down from a 60m high precipice and then onwards to Seljalandsfoss, the only waterfall in Iceland that you can walk behind.

The Famous Golden Circle

Located within 100km of Reykjavík, the Golden Circle continues to be one of Reykjavík Excursions’ most popular destinations. The tour encompasses three of the most popular Icelandic tourist spots, known for their geological, historical and scenic significance. Thingvellir National Park, the original site of the world’s oldest running parliament, is unique in that it sits on the divergent plate boundary of the Mid-Atlantic Ridge. Next is the Haukadalur Geothermal Area where you’ll see the dormant Geysir that gave its name to these steam spouts, a spouting geyser named Strokkur and bubbling mud pools in a steamy, otherworldly landscape. Gullfoss, (Golden Falls), is a raging, double cascade waterfall, as spectacular as they come—and equally impressive when the temperature drops below freezing.

En route, you will tour Friðheimar Greenhouse, where geothermal energy is used to grow pesticide-free tomatoes and cucumbers, year round. Friðheimar’s refreshing homemade tomato soup (not included) is a tempting option, should you want a hot, filling meal during the tour. Shorter versions of the Golden Circle tour are also available.

Helpful tips

Should you decide that a Reykjavík Excursions tour is right for you, here are a few helpful tips to make the most of your tour. 1. First and foremost: dress warmly. The wind chill factor needs to be taken into consideration, particularly in winter, so do dress warmly in layers and don’t forget your gloves and hat. 2. Wear sturdy shoes—you wouldn’t want to scuff up your brand new Nikes. Iceland’s volcanic nature is not always kind to the latest fashion footwear. Sneakers will not cut it! Lastly, all of Reykjavík Excursions tours are available with guidance in English, but did you know that most tours are also available in French, German, Scandinavian, and now Spanish?

Be warm, be well and enjoy Iceland this winter with Reykjavík Excursions.
A Jewel in Iceland’s Winter Crown

South East Iceland’s Vatnajökull Region

The Vatnajökull region is narrow stretch of land that lies just below Vatnajökull Glacier, spanning from Lómagnúpur in the west, to Hvalnes on its eastern border. From the highest peaks of Hvannadalshnúkur down to the expansive glacial outwash plains that characterise the area, the district embraces over 200km of Iceland’s main ring road.

Where the snowscape glister

Glistening glacial lagoons, thundering rivers, waterfalls, black sand beaches and numerous ice caves are just some of the natural gems that can be found within the region’s borders. When the Northern Lights appear, they make an unforgettable sight over Vatnajökull Glacier’s gleaming ice cap and the surrounding winter landscape. The area is also known for its fresh seafood, especially langoustines, aka Norway lobster, and restaurants throughout the district are keen to show off this specialty in a variety of ways. For families with kids there is a fun 2km nature trail by the sea, with beautiful views of the glacier where the solar system comes to life! Free maps of the trail are available at the Hofn Visitor Centre (Gamlabúð).

Into an ice-blue world

Should you have your heart set on visiting an ice cave, look no further, because the Vatnajökull region boasts many of these stunning ice-blue caves. They are only accessible from November to March for obvious reasons and several local companies run by experienced teams of caving experts offer tours into this awe-inspiring world of subglacial speleology. Booking in advance is highly encouraged as tours fill up quickly. For important safety reasons, it is not recommended to go into an ice cave without a certified glacier guide.

Höfn

Well situated just off Road No.1, the attractive harbour town of Höfn makes an excellent base for further exploration of this vast region and beyond. With a population of just over 2,000 inhabitants, the town and its surrounding area boast a number of comfortable hotels and guest houses, a supermarket, petrol stations, a pharmacy, as well as several notable restaurants known for their fresh langoustine dishes. At the tourist information office located in the Hofn Visitor Centre (Gamlabúð) you will find maps, brochures, souvenirs and helpful staff on hand who can answer all your questions. For directions and opening hours, please check their website http://www.vatnajokulsthjodgardur.is/english/operations/visitor-centre/hofn-visitor-centre/.

While travelling in Iceland during autumn, the weather and the sun’s changing light create a unique atmosphere in the countryside. Famous poet Rilke found appropriate words for this time of contemplation and retreat: “Lay your shadows upon the sundials, and o'er the isles allow your winds to vent”.

Enjoying Northern Lights
As darkness returns in autumn, the Northern Lights start illuminating the night skies, and as Hotel Borealis is situated far away from light pollution, the darkness makes them shine even brighter. And there is nothing like soaking in the hotel’s hot tub after an exciting day as the Northern Lights dance above you!

In Nature’s Heart
Hotel Borealis, just a few kilometres from the charming town of Selfoss, offers the serene silence of an elegant countryside retreat while activities and bustling life are on hand a short distance away. The welcomingly neat white houses have been tastefully furnished by blending last century’s Icelandic antiques with modern style and prove to be so cosy you might never want to leave!

Borealis also serves well as a calm retreat for writing a book or contemplating the magic of the Icelandic changing light. When the autumn sun pours out her golden beams on the heather and red leaves, nearby Pingvellir National Park turns into an enchanted island. Cuddle up in a traditional wool sweater and take a stroll through the famous former site of Iceland’s parliament, discover Guðlúfur waterfall and Geyir on a day trip, try golfing on the nearby course or fishing in Lake Úlfafoss. Then, with daylight slowly fading, return to Hotel Borealis for a marvellous dinner, served on antique tables in the spirit of good, old Icelandic hospitality. The chef prides himself on only using local products such as highland lamb, arctic char from Lake Þingvallavatn and vegetables grown in the area’s greenhouses for his delicious meals.

A DELIGHTFUL EXPERIENCE IN STOKKSEYRI

Icelandic Times checks out Fjöruborðið Restaurant

Chef Eiríkur Póir Eiríksson was busy pouring drinks when we arrived. The well known song ‘Vörskvöld í Reykjavík’, (a Spring Evening in Reykjavik) was playing softly in the background. A table of tourists who had spent the day exploring a glacier, with a guide, talked animatedly over dinner in the front room. The low slung building with pleasantly creaky wooden floors, once serving as the search and rescue building of Stokkseyri, is now one of the most popular lobster restaurants in Iceland, with over 45,000 patrons dining there in 2014.

15 tons of lobsters can’t be wrong. Fjöruborðið’s website says that some 15 tons of lobster are used annually to make their famous soup, aka langoustine soup. Hmmmm... impressive statistics but does it really live up to its reputation? After all, there are many fine restaurants right in the capital, so is it really worth the 45 minute drive over a mountain in sometimes dubious weather conditions? Yes! I am happy to report that the soup was sublime. And just forget the word soup, how pedestrian! Chef Eiríkur informs me that it is, in fact, a classic bisque de langoustine.

Whatever name you go by, it was delicious and I would have happily eaten another bowlful had I not needed to move on to taste everything else that was set before me. The lobster tails that were perfect in themselves, homebaked bread with various dipping sauces and if, per chance, you are not partial to seafood, there is a wonderfully tender roasted fillet of lamb served with baby potatoes and red wine sauce that is excellent. A crisp salad made with local produce was refreshing and nicely complemented the seafood and meat dishes. Eight on our as soon as we had finished the lobster tails, our attentive server brought a warm wet cloth for our, by then, messy hands, which was much appreciated.

From the outside, Fjöruborðið appears deceptively small but in fact, it can seat several hundred all told, something that those having a fête-a-fête in the main building would never guess. Facing the ocean out back, a large permanent marquee can seat another 100 or so guests. All that to say, groups are welcome.

Favoured by tour guides who often bring their clients here as the ultimate finish to a perfect day of sightseeing, the restaurant has received several well known personalities such as Prince Frederik of Denmark, the Rockefellers, Clint Eastwood, Martha Stewart, Bette Midler and Cherie Booth (wife of Tony Blair).
